

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910460135803321
Titolo	New perspectives on language variety in the South : historical and contemporary approaches / / edited by Michael D. Picone and Catherine Evans Davies
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Tuscaloosa, Alabama : , : The University of Alabama Press, , 2015 ©2015
ISBN	0-8173-8736-6
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (824 p.)
Disciplina	427/.975
Soggetti	English language - Variation - Southern States English language - Dialects - Southern States English language - Southern States - Pronunciation Language and languages - Variation - Southern States Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Contents; Acknowledgments; 1. Introduction - Michael D. Picone and Catherine Evans Davies; Part I. Historical Approaches; Indigenous Languages; 2. American Indian Languages of the Southeast: An Introduction - Pamela Munro; 3. A Profile of the Caddo Language - Wallace Chafe; 4. The Ofo Language of Louisiana: Recovery of Grammar and Typology - Robert L. Rankin; 5. Timucua-ta: Muskogean Parallels - George Aaron Broadwell; 6. Pre-Columbian Links to the Caribbean: Evidence Connecting Cusabo to Taino - Blair A. Rudes; Earlier Englishes of the South 7. The Crucial Century for English in the American South - Michael B. Montgomery 8. Southern American English in Perspective: A Quantitative Comparison with Other English and American Dialects - Robert Shackleton; 9. Some Developments in Southern American English Grammar - Jan Tillery; 10. Francis Lieber's Americanisms as an Early Source on Southern Speech - Stuart Davis; 11. Earlier Southern Englishes in Black and White: Corpus-Based Approaches - Edgar W. Schneider; The African Diaspora; 12. Some Early Creole-Like Data from

Slave Speakers: The Island of St. Helena, 1695-1711 - Laura Wright
 13. Regional Variation in Nineteenth-Century African American English - Gerard Van Herk
 14. Prima Facie Evidence for the Persistence of Creole Features in African American English and Evidence for Residual Creole - David Sutcliffe;
 15. The Linguistic Status of Gullah-Geechee: Divergent Phonological Processes - Thomas B. Klein;
 Earlier French of the Gulf South;
 16. French Dialects of Louisiana: A Revised Typology - Michael D. Picone;
 17. From French to English in Louisiana: The Prudhomme Family's Story - Connie C. Eble;
 Part II. Contemporary Approaches; Across the South
 18. The South in DARE Revisited - Joan Houston Hall and Luanne von Schneidmesser
 19. The South: Still Different - Dennis R. Preston;
 20. Demography as Destiny? Population Change and the Future of Southern American English - Guy Bailey;
 English in the Contemporary South: Persistence and Change;
 21. A Century of Sound Change in Alabama - Crawford Feagin;
 22. Various Variation Aggregates in the LAMSAS South - John Nerbonne;
 23. The Persistence of Dialect Features - Sylvie Dubois and Barbara Horvath;
 English in the Contemporary South: Discourse Approaches
 24. Southern Storytelling: Historical and Contemporary Perspectives - Catherine Evans Davies
 25. The Southern and Southwestern Discourse Styles of Two Texas Women - Judith M. Bean;
 26. We Ain't Done Yet: Dialect Depiction and Language Ideology - Rachel Shuttlesworth Thompson;
 English in the Contemporary South: African American Language Issues;
 27. Race, Racism, and the Study of Language Evolution in America - Salikoko Mufwene;
 28. The Language of Black Women in the Smoky Mountain Region of Appalachia - Christine Mallinson and Becky Childs
 29. The Sound Symbolism of Self in Innovative Naming Practices in an African American Community - Janis B. Nuckolls and Linda Beito

---

Sommario/riassunto

The third installment in the landmark LAVIS (Language Variety in the South) series, New Perspectives on Language Variety in the South: Historical and Contemporary Approaches brings together essays devoted to the careful examination and elucidation of the rich linguistic diversity of the American South, updating and broadening the work of the earlier volumes by more fully capturing the multifaceted configuration of languages and dialects in the South. Beginning with an introduction to American Indian languages of the Southeast, five fascinating essays discuss indigenous languages, including Cad

---