1. Record Nr. UNINA9910460245103321

Autore Jerng Mark C

Titolo Claiming others [[electronic resource]]: transracial adoption and national belonging / / Mark C. Jerng

Pubbl/distr/stampa Minneapolis, : University of Minnesota Press, c2010

ISBN 0-8166-7516-3

Descrizione fisica 1 online resource (352 p.)

Disciplina 362.734

810.9/35254

Soggetti Adoption in literature

American literature - 20th century - History and criticism

Interracial adoption in literature

Interracial adoption Race in literature Electronic books.

Lingua di pubblicazione Inglese

Formato Materiale a stampa

Livello bibliografico Monografia

Note generali Description based upon print version of record.

Nota di bibliografia Includes bibliographical references and index.

Nota di contenuto Transracial adoption and the reproduction of personhood -- On the borders of kinship -- Competing logics of possession: unredeemed captives in the 1820's -- Unmanageable attachments: slavery, abolition, and the transformation of kinship -- The character of race: individuation and the institutionalization of adoption -- Between rights and needs -- The right to belong: legal norms, cultural origins, and adoptee identity -- Resisting recognition: narrating transracial adoptees as subjects -- Making family "look like real": transracial adoption and the challenge to family.

Sommario/riassunto Transracial adoption has recently become a hotly contested subject of contemporary and critical concern, with scholars across the disciplines working to unravel its complex implications. In Claiming Others, Mark C. Jerng traces the practice of adoption to the early nineteenth century, revealing its surprising centrality to American literature, law, and social thought. Jerng considers how adoption makes us rethink the parent-child bond as central to issues of race and nationality, showing the ways adoption also speaks to broader questions about our history and