

|                         |  |
|-------------------------|--|
| 1. Record Nr.           | UNINA9910460867003321  |
| Titolo                  | Climate change and insurance // Christina M. Carroll [and three others]  |
| Pubbl/distr/stampa      | Chicago, Illinois : , : American Bar Association, , 2012©2012  |
| ISBN                    | 1-61438-734-6  |
| Descrizione fisica      | 1 online resource (518 p.)   |
| Disciplina              | 346.73/086   |
| Soggetti                | Climatic changes - Law and legislation - United StatesClimate change insurance - Law and legislation - United StatesLiability for environmental damages - United StatesElectronic books.   |
| Lingua di pubblicazione | Inglese  |
| Formato                 | Materiale a stampa   |
| Livello bibliografico   | Monografia   |
| Note generali           | Description based upon print version of record.  |
| Nota di bibliografia    | Includes bibliographical references and index.   |
| Nota di contenuto       | Cover Page; Title Page; Contents; About the Author; Acknowledgments;CHAPTER 1: Climate Change and Insurance: An Overview; CHAPTER 2:Climate Change, Global Warming, and Greenhouse Gases: Background;CHAPTER 3: Climate Change as an Emerging Risk and Comparison toHistoric Emerging Risks; CHAPTER 4: The Likely Plaintiffs and Targetsof Emerging Climate Change-Related Litigation and Regulation;CHAPTER 5: Existing and Emerging Climate Change-Related Regulation;CHAPTER 6: Climate Change-Related Litigation; CHAPTER 7:Intersection of Climate Change and InsuranceCHAPTER 8: Potential Claims Liability: Potential ExposureDriversGlossary of Acronyms & Terms; Index |
| Sommario/riassunto      | Climate change has become a significant issue in scientific, political,and legal circles, and this may have profound implications for theinsurance industry. More frequent catastrophic events such as floods,droughts, fires, hurricanes, and the like, whether or not attributable toclimate change, challenge the insurance industry's abilities to measureand predict risk. Climate Change and Insurance is the first publicationof its kind and the definitive resource for anyone seeking to understandthe complex risks and opportunities associated with climate changeand its potential impacts on the  |

