

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910461165803321
Autore	Lelekis Debbie
Titolo	American literature, lynching, and the spectator in the crowd : spectacular violence // Debbie Lelekis
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Lanham [Maryland] : , : Lexington Books, , [2015] ©2015
ISBN	1-4985-0636-4
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (127 p.)
Disciplina	810.9/3552
Soggetti	American literature - 20th century - History and criticism - Theory, etc Narration (Rhetoric) Spectators in literature Point of view (Literature) Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	A critical introduction: spectatorship and the evolution of crowds in literature the intersection of journalism, politics, and fiction -- Reporting the crowd -- The female reporter as spectator and spectacle -- Confronting the crowd and vigilante violence -- Recounting the horror of the spectacle.
Sommario/riassunto	American Literature, Lynching, and the Spectator in the Crowd: Spectacular Violence examines spectatorship in texts by Theodore Dreiser, Miriam Michelson, Irvin S. Cobb, and Paul Laurence Dunbar. As a figure who is simultaneously within and outside the crowd, the spectator (often in the form of a reporter character) is in a unique position to express the fractures between the individual and the collective in American society, seen most vividly in fictional lynch mob scenes in American literature at the turn of the twentieth century.