

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910462013103321
Autore	Cerami Joseph R.
Titolo	Leadership and policy innovation-- from Clinton to Bush : countering the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction / / Joseph R. Cerami
Pubbl/distr/stampa	New York : , : Routledge, , 2013
ISBN	1-283-71059-5 0-203-10035-2 1-136-23082-3
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (215 p.)
Collana	Routledge research in public administration and public policy ; ; 3
Disciplina	327.1/7450973
Soggetti	Nuclear nonproliferation - Government policy - United States - History Weapons of mass destruction - Government policy - United States - History Political leadership - United States - History Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. [157]-181) and index.
Nota di contenuto	Policy innovation and public leadership : the real work of leaders -- Strategic narrative -- US national security and counterproliferation policy in the Clinton Administration -- The US-North Korea Agreed Framework -- Russia's loose nukes and the Nunn-Lugar Cooperative Threat Reduction Program -- The US and the United Nations versus Iraq -- Findings and conclusions : the real work of leaders in national security policy innovation.
Sommario/riassunto	Throughout the Cold War there were longstanding efforts to control the spread of Weapons of Mass Destruction (WMD) through extensive arms control, deterrence, and defense programs. Since then counterproliferation efforts by the U.S. and international community have accelerated. Given the attention to counterproliferation in the last decade, how effective was the leadership provided by President Clinton and his Secretaries of Defense, Aspin, Perry and Cohen, in providing innovative and effective policies for countering the proliferation of WMD?Comparing the cases of U.S.-North

