

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910462019403321
Autore	Bajorek Jennifer
Titolo	Counterfeit capital [[electronic resource]] : poetic labor and revolutionary irony / / Jennifer Bajorek
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Stanford, Calif., : Stanford University Press, 2009
ISBN	0-8047-8680-1
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (160 p.)
Disciplina	841/.8
Soggetti	Capitalism in literature Irony in literature Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Front matter -- Contents -- Acknowledgments -- Abbreviations -- Introduction: Swindlers and Prophets -- Chapter 1. Paris Spleen (The Irony of Revolutionary Power) -- Chapter 2. Animadversions (Technics after Capital) -- Chapter 3. An/economy and Some Others (Accumulation and the Coming Injustice) -- Chapter 4. Insert into Blankness (Poetry and Cultural Memory in Benjamin's Baudelaire) -- Notes -- Works Cited -- Index
Sommario/riassunto	Counterfeit Capital is a comparative and interdisciplinary study exploring the unexpected yet essential relationship between irony and capital in the texts of Baudelaire and Marx. It argues for the renewed relevance of their work to contemporary thinking about the place of aesthetic and cultural experience in social and political life and articulates their poetic and philosophical innovations with their political statements in new and powerful ways. Through readings of Baudelaire's poetry and prose and Marx's Capital, this book illuminates their ongoing contribution to our understanding of themes and topics at the forefront of contemporary theoretical debate, including the effects of new technologies on the means of human action and transformation and the prospects for community and memory under capitalism. This book also revisits Walter Benjamin's interpretations of the philosopher and the poet. Rereading Baudelaire and Marx together with the unplumbed lessons of Benjamin's interpretations, it contributes to a growing body of interdisciplinary scholarship on the political dimensions and effects of language and to the current rethinking, in Marxist and post-Marxist theory, of conceptions of political time and agency.
