

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910462195303321
Autore	Kowal Ewa
Titolo	The "image-event" in the early post-9/11 novel : literary representations of terror after September 11, 2001 // Ewa Kowal [[electronic resource]]
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Krakow : , : Jagiellonian University Press, , 2012
ISBN	83-233-8491-6
Edizione	[First edition.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (150 pages) : digital, PDF file(s)
Disciplina	813/.6093587393
Soggetti	American fiction - 21st century - History and criticism September 11 Terrorist Attacks, 2001, in literature Terrorism in literature September 11 Terrorist Attacks, 2001 - Influence
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Title from publisher's bibliographic system (viewed on 31 May 2016).
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references.
Nota di contenuto	CONTENTS; ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS; FOREWORD: WORD ON TERROR; INTRODUCTION: THE IMAGE(-EVENT); CHAPTER I: (AUDIO-)VISUAL MEDIA IN THE POST-9/11 NOVEL; I.1. Technology; I.2. The Pattern; I.3. Media in the post-9/11 novel; I.4. "Bigger, brighter, life's so short"- inflammable art in the post-9/11 novel; CHAPTER II: FORM; CHAPTER III: MOTIFS OF CHILDHOOD AND MAGICAL THINKING IN THE POST-9/11 NOVEL; III.1. The "proto-child"; III.2. The figure of the "child"; III.3. Magical thinking (1); III.4. Motifs of childhood and magical thinking in the post-9/11 novel III.5. The post-9/11 novel in the Language Classroom III.6. Magical thinking (2): Magic - "the most childlike of skills"; CONCLUSION; BIBLIOGRAPHY
Sommario/riassunto	How can literature respond to a monumental event, unprecedented historically, politically and culturally, whose memory will forever be inseparable from its mass media coverage? How can writers represent what Jean Baudrillard called an "image-event"? In particular, what form can they use to convey the unspeakable - that was at the same time broadcast live across the globe? These questions are central to Ewa Kowal's comparative study of thirteen early post-9/11 novels. Written in four different Western countries between 2003 and 2007, during the now historical time of George W. Bush's "war on terror," the selected works provide the earliest literary reactions to the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks and/or their aftermath. Kowal examines them in a wider cultural context, focusing especially on audio-visual media, motifs of childhood and magical thinking as well as the destabilised division into reality and fiction. Offering an original reading of the whole body of work, the author places each analysed book on a scale according to its closeness to a terrorist attack, revealing a correspondence between the distance from the tragedy, the levels of danger and risk taken and the degree of formal (un)conventionality.
