

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910462529503321
Autore	Faber Michael J. <1980->
Titolo	Our Federalist constitution [[electronic resource] ] : the founders' expectations and contemporary American government / / Michael J. Faber
Pubbl/distr/stampa	El Paso, : LFB Scholarly Pub., 2011
ISBN	1-59332-663-7
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (304 p.)
Collana	Law and society: recent scholarship
Disciplina	342.7302/9
Soggetti	Constitutional history - United States Constitutional law - United States Federal government - United States Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	CONTENTS; Preface; List of Abbreviations; Chapter 1: The Founding and Contemporary Institutions; Chapter 2: Representation and the House; Chapter 3: Stability and the Senate; Chapter 4: Leadership and the Presidency; Chapter 5: Judicial Review and the Supreme Court; Chapter 6: Federalism and Consolidation; Chapter 7: Conclusion; References; Index
Sommario/riassunto	The debate over the ratification of the United States Constitution has much to tell us about American politics. Using predictions made by Federalists and Anti-Federalists during that debate, Faber examines contemporary American politics. The Federalists explained how the various branches of government would work together to govern while preventing tyranny; the Anti-Federalists told us how things would fall apart and why. Through a careful examination of the two houses of Congress, the Presidency, and the Supreme Court, Faber evaluates the state of each in light of the predictions of the founde