

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910463242203321
Autore	Miller Manjari Chatterjee <1976->
Titolo	Wronged by empire [[electronic resource] ] : post-imperial ideology and foreign policy in India and China / / Manjari Chatterjee Miller
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Stanford, Calif., : Stanford University Press, 2013
ISBN	0-8047-8843-X
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (xiv, 168 pages) : illustrations (black and white), maps (black and white)
Collana	Studies in Asian Security Studies in Asian security
Altri autori (Persone)	MillerManjari Chatterjee <1976->
Disciplina	327.51
Soggetti	Imperialism - Psychological aspects International relations - Psychological aspects Electronic books India Foreign relations 1984- India Foreign relations 1947-1984 China Foreign relations 1949-
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Bibliographic Level Mode of Issuance: Monograph
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Trauma, colonialism and post-imperial ideology -- PII : discourse and discord in the UN -- PII and the Sino-Indian border negotiations of 1960 -- PII, victimhood and nuclear apartheid -- PII, victimhood and Sino-Japanese hostility.
Sommario/riassunto	Miller uses colonialism as a lens to understand the foreign policy of countries that have undergone it, focusing specifically on the cases of India and China. Colonialism, although a hugely influential phenomenon, has not been treated systematically by IR theorists, or used to understand foreign policy decisions. This book argues that colonialism should be viewed through the lens of trauma to understand why it continues to matter to many countries today. It specifically focuses on two countries with very different colonial experiences but with a similar emphasis on their colonial past.