

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910463702103321
Titolo	Class matters : early North America and the Atlantic world // edited by Simon Middleton and Billy G. Smith
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Philadelphia, Pennsylvania : , : University of Pennsylvania Press, , 2008 ©2008
ISBN	1-283-89780-6 0-8122-0556-1
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (343 p.)
Collana	Early American Studies
Disciplina	305.512097
Soggetti	Social stratification - North America Social classes - North America Electronic books. North America Social conditions North America Economic conditions
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Includes index.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. [235]-313) and index.
Nota di contenuto	Front matter -- Contents -- Introduction / Middleton, Simon / Smith, Billy G. -- 1. Theorizing Class in Glasgow and the Atlantic World / Newman, Simon P. -- 2. Stratification and Class in Eastern Native America / Richter, Daniel K. -- 3. Subaltern Indians, Race, and Class in Early America / Mandell, Daniel R. -- 4. Class Struggle in a West Indian Plantation Society / Zacek, Natalie -- 5. Class at an African Commercial Enclave / Reese, Ty M. -- 6. A Class Struggle in New York? / Middleton, Simon -- 7. Middle-Class Formation in Eighteenth-Century North America / Dierks, Konstantin -- 8. Business Friendships and Individualism in a Mercantile Class of Citizens in Charleston / Goloboy, Jennifer L. -- 9. Corporations and the Coalescence of an Elite Class in Philadelphia / Schocket, Andrew M. -- 10. Class, Discourse, and Industrialization in the New American Republic / Peskin, Lawrence A. -- 11. Sex and Other Middle-Class Pastimes in the Life of Ann Carson / Branson, Susan -- 12. Leases and the Laboring Classes in Revolutionary America / Humphrey, Thomas J. -- 13. Class and Capital Punishment in Early Urban North America / Gottlieb, Gabriele -- 14. Class

Sommario/riassunto

As a category of historical analysis, class is dead-or so it has been reported over the past two decades. The contributors to Class Matters contest this demise. Although differing in their approaches, they all agree that socioeconomic inequality remains indispensable to a true understanding of the transition from the early modern to modern era in North America and the rest of the Atlantic world. As a whole, they chart the emergence of class as a concept and its subsequent loss of analytic purchase in Anglo-American historiography. The opening section considers the dynamics of class relations in the Atlantic world across the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries-from Iroquoian and Algonquian communities in North America to tobacco lords in Glasgow. Subsequent chapters examine the cultural development of a new and aspirational middle class and its relationship to changing economic conditions and the articulation of corporate and industrial ideologies in the era of the American Revolution and beyond. A final section shifts the focus to the poor and vulnerable-tenant farmers, infant paupers, and the victims of capital punishment. In each case the authors describe how elite Americans exercised their political and social power to structure the lives and deaths of weaker members of their communities. An impassioned afterword urges class historians to take up the legacies of historical materialism. Engaging the difficulties and range of meanings of class, the essays in Class Matters seek to energize the study of social relations in the Atlantic world.

---