

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910463922003321
Autore	Hannesson Rognvaldur
Titolo	Ecofundamentalism : a critique of extreme environmentalism // Rognvaldur Hannesson
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Lanham, Maryland : , : Lexington Books, , 2014 ©2014
ISBN	0-7391-8964-6
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (131 p.)
Disciplina	363.7
Soggetti	Deep ecology Environmental ethics Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Contents; Acknowledgment; Chapter One. Introduction; Chapter Two. Environmentalism: What Is It?; Chapter Three. Sustainability; Chapter Four. Biodiversity, Alien Species, and "Iconic" Animals; Chapter Five. Energy; Chapter Six. Global Warming, Forest Death, and the Ozone Hole; Chapter Seven. Is the World Overpopulated?; Chapter Eight. Fisheries, Aquaculture, and the Oceans; Chapter Nine. Conclusion; Literature; Index; About the Author
Sommario/riassunto	Ecofundamentalism: A Critique of Extreme Environmentalism is one of few books that focuses on ecofundamentalism, from its philosophical foundations to its policy prescriptions, instead of environmentalism as a whole. Ecofundamentalism places nature above man and is a possible threat to civilization. Rognvaldur Hannesson critically examines central tenets of environmentalism such as sustainability, biodiversity, and the precautionary principle and he shows that issues like the "population bomb," global warming, and the depletion of the ocean