

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910464288503321
Autore	Ronk Martha Clare
Titolo	Why, why not [[electronic resource] /] / Martha Ronk
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Berkeley, : University of California Press, 2003
ISBN	1-282-76289-3 9786612762895 0-520-93711-2
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (101 p.)
Collana	New California poetry ; ; v. 8
Disciplina	811/.54
Soggetti	American poetry - 21st century Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di contenuto	Front matter -- Contents -- 1. Perplexities -- 2. Why Knowing Is -- 3. Why/Why Not -- Acknowledgments
Sommario/riassunto	Why/Why Not presents a speaker caught in quandaries created by changing perspectives, fervors, and locales. Why do we act one way here and another there; why can't a mind stay made up; why do we hate and love at the same time; why does memory fade or insist; why does the ordinary seem so uncanny? These questions are captured in lines that collide and merge, in irreverent and offhand jibes, and in plaintive repetitions. Why/Why Not moves across a vivid terrain-the stage of Hamlet, Phillip Marlowe's Los Angeles, Prague, paintings and gardens-to push through a tangle of ways to make sense of the world. Martha Ronk's poetic language is that of the everyday slightly skewed, as if pieces of an ordinary sentence were missing. Ronk's poems use the repetitive and the banal to explore ways in which language is intertwined with thought and experience.