Nota di bibliografia Nota di contenuto Introduction -- Energy, manufacturing, and the changing global economy -- Green jobs and the green energy transition -- Green industrial policy and the 111th Congress -- State governments and the greening of import substitution -- The greening of regional industrial clusters -- Localist alternatives to the mainstream transition -- Green transition coalitions and geographical unevenness -- After 2010: continued unevenness in the green transition -- Conclusion --Appendix: state government votes for green energy laws. After describing federal green energy initiatives in the first two years of Sommario/riassunto the Obama administration. Hess turns his attention to the state and local levels, examining demand-side and supply-side support for green industry and local small business. He analyzes the successes and failures of green coalitions and the partisan patterns of support for green energy reform. This new piecemeal green industrial policy, Hess argues, signals a fundamental challenge to anti-interventionist beliefs about the relationship between the government and the economy."--
