

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910466302103321
Autore	Gabrial Brian
Titolo	The press and slavery in America, 1791-1859 : the melancholy effect of popular excitement // Brian Gabrial
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Columbia, South Carolina : , : The University of South Carolina Press, , [2016] ©2016
ISBN	1-61117-604-2
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (257 p.)
Disciplina	071/.3
Soggetti	Slavery - Press coverage - United States - History - 19th century Antislavery movements - Press coverage - United States - History - 19th century Antislavery movements - United States - Periodicals - History - 19th century Antislavery movements - United States - History - 19th century Journalism - Political aspects - United States - History - 19th century Mass media and public opinion - United States - History - 19th century Mass media and race relations - United States - History - 19th century Public opinion - United States - History - 19th century American newspapers - History - 19th century Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Racism and slavery in America -- The press and slave troubles in America -- Haiti in 1791, Gabriel Prosser's 1800 conspiracy, and the 1811 German coast slave revolt -- Denmark Vesey's 1822 conspiracy and Nat Turner's 1831 slave revolt -- Slavery, the press, and America's transformation, 1831-59 -- John Brown's "Greatest or principal object" -- From madman to martyr : John Brown's transformation in the northern antislavery press -- Media discourses about slavery -- Dealing with slavery's enemies -- A racial panic -- Maintaining slavery -- Slavery divides the nation -- Slavery's immorality and destruction of civil liberties -- Slavery destroys freedom of the press -- The press and slavery's legacy.

Sommario/riassunto

An examination of how press coverage of slave revolts forced public discussions that ultimately influenced public opinion