

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910467457003321
Titolo	The practice of counselling & clinical supervision // edited by Nadine J. Pelling, Philip Armstrong ; with Anne Moir-Bussy, consultant
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Samford Valley, Qld, Australia : , : Australian Academic Press, , 2017
ISBN	1-922117-87-0
Edizione	[Second edition.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (445 pages)
Disciplina	158.3
Soggetti	Counseling Social service Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di contenuto	Chap 1. Introduction to Clinical Supervision -- Chap 2. Conceptualising Counselling Supervision – Chap 3. Administration and Marketing of Supervision -- Chap 4. International Counselling and Psychology Professional Organisations and Resources – Chap 5. Ethical Issues in the Clinical Supervision of Evidence-Based Practices -- Chap 6. The State of Supervision Scholarship in the 21st Century -- Chap 7. Solution-Focused Supervision -- Chap 8. The Professionalisation of Counselling Supervision in Singapore -- Chap 9. Models of Supervision: From Theory to Practice -- Chap 10. Addressing Supervisee Fears in Supervision -- Chap 11. Alliance Supervision to Enhance Client Outcomes -- Chap 12. Processes and Interventions to Facilitate Supervisees' Learning -- Chap 13. The Supervisory Relationship -- Chap 14. Supervisor Development -- Chap 15. Who Are Australian Counsellors and How Do They Attend to Their Professional Development? -- Chapter 16 Culture-Infused Counselling Supervision -- Chap 17. Supervision as Gatekeeping: Managing Professional Competency Problems in Student Supervis -- Chap 18. Counsellor Competence -- Chap 19. Supervising Clinical Placement
Sommario/riassunto	The professional tasks of those who provide therapy are multidimensional and complex, just as those who conduct therapy come from multiple disciplines. Counsellors, psychologists, social workers, psychiatrists, and in some instances nurses, educators, clergy, life coaches, and pastoral carers all engage in psychologically therapeutic activities. Without the support and encouragement of colleagues these essential professionals run the risk of suffering a range of factors affecting their roles, including compassion fatigue, burnout, and stagnating professional development. Thus, the need to be involved with ongoing supervision is essential. First published in 2009, The Practice of Clinical Supervision quickly proved itself as the leading state-of-the-art text for supervision training of a range of clinical therapists. In this new and expanded edition, The Practice of Counselling and Clinical Supervision now comprehensively covers the entire range of professional, personal and organisational issues that need to be addressed to ensure quality supervision for both counsellors and clinicians. With a global focus and an impressive list of 16 experienced contributors from Australia, Canada and the US, this book provides a wealth of practical information, advice, theory, research evidence, and essential training for supervisors. Five themes are covered through 19 chapters:

- The Introduction section explores major issues associated with therapists accessing and providing professional clinical and counselling supervision.
- The Professional Issues section looks at different supervision-related domains in a contemporary context.
- The Approaches section enables both trainees and supervisors to re-examine the important role of the working alliance in facilitating change through supervisory encounters while exploring the major models and processes used to enhance learning.
- The People section examines personal dimensions of clinical supervision such as relationships, modes of supervision practice, and supervisor development and training.
- The Evaluation section provides both general and specific information about the often unnerving and complex issue of evaluation.
