Record Nr. UNINA9910467911203321 Autore Makley Charlene <1964-> Titolo The battle for fortune: state-led development, personhood, and power among Tibetans in China / / Charlene Makley Ithaca;; London:,: Cornell University Press,, 2018 Pubbl/distr/stampa ISBN 1-5017-1967-X 1-5017-1965-3 Descrizione fisica 1 online resource (345 pages) Collana Studies of the Weatherhead East Asian Institute, Columbia University Disciplina 951/.5 Tibetans - China - Reb-gong Gser-mo-ljongs - Social conditions -Soggetti 21st century Tibetans - China - Reb-gong Gser-mo-ljongs - Economic conditions -21st century Electronic books. Reb-gong Gser-mo-ljongs (China) Ethnic relations Reb-gong Gser-mo-ljongs (China) Politics and government 21st century Lingua di pubblicazione Inglese Formato Materiale a stampa Livello bibliografico Monografia Note generali Previously issued in print: 2018. Nota di bibliografia Includes bibliographical references and index. Nota di contenuto Introduction: Olympic time and dilemmas of development in China's Tibet -- The dangers of the gift master -- The mountain deity and the state : voice, deity mediumship and land expropriation in Jima village spaces, cementing treasure: concrete, money, and the politics of value in Kharnak village school -- The melodious sound of the right-turning conch: historiography and Buddhist counterdevelopment in Langmo village -- Spectacular compassion: "natural" disasters, national mourning, and the unquiet dead -- Epilogue : the kindly solemn face of the female Buddha. Sommario/riassunto In a deeply ethnographic appraisal, based on years of in situ research, The Battle for Fortune looks at the rising stakes of Tibetans' encounters with Chinese state-led development projects in the early 2000s. The book builds upon anthropology's qualitative approach to personhood, power and space to rethink the premises and consequences of economic development campaigns in China's multiethnic northwestern province of Qinghai. Charlene Makley considers Tibetans' encounters with development projects as first and foremost a historically situated interpretive politics, in which people negotiate the presence or absence of moral and authoritative persons and their associated jurisdictions and powers. Because most Tibetans believe the active presence of deities and other invisible beings has been the ground of power, causation, and fertile or fortunate landscapes, Makley also takes divine beings seriously, refusing to relegate them to a separate, less consequential, "religious" or "premodern" world. The Battle for Fortune, therefore challenges readers to grasp the unique reality of Tibetans' values and fears in the face of their marginalization in China. Makley uses this approach to encourage a more multidimensional and dynamic understanding of state-local relations than mainstream accounts of development and unrest that portray Tibet and China as a kind of yinand-yang pair for models of statehood and development in a new global order.