

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910480702903321
Autore	Simons Craig
Titolo	Devouring Dragon [[electronic resource] ] : How China's Rise Threatens the Natural World
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Wellington, : Awa Press, 2013
ISBN	1-877551-96-1
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (366 p.)
Disciplina	363.70951
Soggetti	Environmental degradation -- China Environmental policy -- China Environmental protection -- International cooperation Environmental responsibility -- China Nature -- Effect of human beings on -- China Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di contenuto	Author's Note; Prologue; Part I: China's Baseline; The Yangtze; Baselines; The Three Gorges Dam; Part II: Life on the Brink; Tiger, Tiger, Burning Bright; The Sixth Great Extinction; Corbett National Park; Part III: Our Shrinking Forests; A Forest Laid Flat; New Guinea; Our Future Forests; Part IV: Our Warming Skies; Time Travel; Hopenhagen; Epilogue; Notes; Acknowledgements; Copyright
Sommario/riassunto	<P style=""MARGIN: 0in 0in 0pt"" class=MsoNormal>For this brilliant book, author Craig Simons visited many of the places and spoke to many of the people impacted by China's explosive economic growth and voracious appetite for resources. From New Guinea, where great forests are being felled and rare birds threatened to meet China's demand for timber; through Brazil, where large swaths of the Amazon are being cleared to plant soybeans for China, and India, where poachers are hunting and killing tigers and other endangered animals to extinction to feed Chinese demand; to Australia, where the coun