

nouveaux frais, et par une analyse distanciée, les questions fondamentales attachées à cette forme d'habitat que bon nombre de ses usagers définissent par la volonté de participer ainsi pleinement à la vie de la cité. Partant de la volonté de combiner recherche, engagement militant et expertise, sans confondre les registres de réflexivité, il est écrit à plusieurs mains pour traiter de ces différentes dimensions. Participatory housing is apprehended in this book as much by a sociology of the city, as a relation to space and to others, as by taking into account public action and aspirations to limit the processes of individualization peculiar to our contemporary societies. It is the result of a team formed in 2013, the dynamics of which are based on the desire to tackle new costs, and through a distanced analysis, the fundamental questions attached to this form of housing that many of its users define by willingness to participate fully in the life of the city.

---