Sommario/riassunto	'The colonial history of Cyprus – a partitioned island in a partitioned world – is as often misunderstood as it is forgotten. Yet, as this timely book shows, this fraught history has much to offer postcolonial studies, not least as a catalyst for the 'transportal' literature with which contemporary Cypriot writers, amidst continuing geopolitical pressures, seek imaginative openings to a more fully decolonized, less ideologically polarized world.' — Professor Graham Huggan, University of Leeds, UK 'Daniele Nunziata brilliantly investigates the close postcolonial parallels and yet specific local divergences between partitioned Cyprus in the later decades of the twentieth century, and the wider postcolonial and post-independence world. His analysis adapts and refines insights from postcolonial and world literature theoretical frameworks to shed illuminating light on Cypriot writing, while at the same time demonstrating the connectedness of this literature to the writing of other postcolonial nations including South Africa, India and Pakistan.' — Professor Elleke Boehmer, University of Oxford, UK This book analyses colonial and postcolonial writing about Cyprus, before and after its independence from the British Empire in 1960. These works are understood as 'transportal literatures' in that they navigate the liminal and layered forms of colonialism which impede the freedom of the island, including the residues of British imperialism, the impact of Greek and Turkish nationalisms, and the ethnolinguistic border between north and south. This study puts pressure on the postcolonial discipline by evaluating the unique hegemonic relationship Cyprus has with three metropolitan centres, not one. The print languages associated with each centre (English, Greek, and Turkish) are complicit in neo-colonial activity. Contemporary Cypriot writers address this in order to resist sectarian division and grapple with their deferred postcoloniality.

Sommario/riassunto	It is our great pleasure to welcome you to the 16th ACM ASIA Conference on Computer and Communications Security 2021 (ACM ASIACCS 2021). Planning for ASIACCS 2021 began more than a year ago as a physical event in Hong Kong. However, due to the global COVID-19 pandemic and the resulting travel restrictions, it was decided in early 2021 that the conference will be hosted wholly online. Despite the change, this year's conference continues and extends its tradition as a premier venue for researchers and practitioners to present and discuss the latest security and privacy research. As in the past, the conference program also includes pre-conference workshops on specific subjects. To create a more interactive virtual experience for all participants through this challenging period, we also prepared an online social event to provide the participants with additional social networking opportunities. ASIACCS 2021 has benefited from many contributors for its success. We would like to thank the authors and the program committee for the outstanding program. We are grateful to the distinguished keynote speakers, Prof. Somesh Jha, Prof. Kui Ren, and Prof. Elaine Shi. We are deeply indebted to the organizing committee, including the Program Chairs: Zhiqiang Lin and Moti Yung; Local Organization Chair: Xiapu Luo; Publicity Chair: Weizhi Meng; Finance Chair: Dennis Y. W. Liu; Workshop Chair: Cong Wang; Publication Chair: Tsz Hon Yuen; Poster Chair: Yajin Zhou. We would like to express our deep gratitude to the steering committee for their valuable support and suggestions.
