| Sommario/riassunto | The purpose of the National Computer Conferences is to provide an atmosphere wherein designers, suppliers, users, managers, educators, and representatives of Government and Society at large can meet and interact. Discussions of new technical developments, as well as National and International issues and challenges facing the Information Processing Community, have been encouraged. This year's discussions and developments are contained, for the most part, in this Volume 44 of the 1975 National Computer Conference. |
