

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910554493803321
Autore	Elder Laurel
Titolo	The partisan gap : why Democratic women get elected but Republican women don't // Laurel Elder [[electronic resource]]
Pubbl/distr/stampa	New York : , : New York University Press, , 2021
ISBN	1-4798-0487-8
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (239 pages)
Collana	NYU scholarship online
Disciplina	324.273
Soggetti	Political parties - United States - Platforms Liberalism - United States - History Conservatism - United States - History Political culture - United States - History Minorities - Political activity - United States - History Women - Political activity - United States - History Women legislators - United States - History Women political candidates - United States
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Also issued in print: 2021.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Introduction: The partisan dynamics of women's representation -- A tale of two parties: The changing electoral environment -- Minding the gap: Women in state legislatures -- Whither Republican women? Women in Congress -- Late to the party: Party culture and the recruitment of women candidates -- Conclusion: The future of the partisan gap among women in office.
Sommario/riassunto	From Kamala Harris and Elizabeth Warren to Stacey Abrams and Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, women around the country are running in- and winning-elections at an unprecedented rate. It appears that women are on a steady march toward equal representation across state legislatures and the US Congress, but there is a sharp divide in this representation along party lines. Most of the women in office are Democrats, and the number of elected Republican women has been plunging for decades. In 'The Partisan Gap', Elder examines why this disparity in women's representation exists, and why it's only going to get worse. Drawing on interviews with female office-holders, candidates, and committee members, she takes a look at what it is like to be a woman in each party.

---