Sommario/riassunto	"Souvent eludee par l'histoire de la philosophie, la question philosophique et medicale de la difference des sexes est fondamentale a l'epoque moderne. Les modeles pour penser cette difference proviennent essentiellement de deux anthropologies opposees : celle de Descartes et celle de Cureau de la Chambre. Leurs sciences de l'etre humain examinent tout d'abord les interactions entre corps et esprit, mais elles mettent surtout en valeur les pensees propres du corps par le biais de l'imagination. C'est a meme le corps que se decide si femmes et hommes sont egaux. Les lectures critiques de ces deux modeles proposees d'un cote par Malebranche et de l'autre par Poulain de la Barre confirment que le xviiie siecle constitue un tournant dans l'analyse psycho-physiologique et morale. La confrontation de ces quatre philosophes permet de comprendre comment se sont constituees des lignees theoriques sur sexe et genre qui sont toujours actuelles : celle de l'egalitarisme et celle d'un differencialisme qui peut etre inegalitaire ou egalitaire."

Sommario/riassunto

Critical in policy analysis is not only the question whether it works. One needs to know how it works. This is a question about causal mechanisms. In this exemplary volume the authors provide some generic mechanisms that can apply in variety of settings along with detailed case studies of mechanisms in individual countries. It is essential reading for all those interested in social policy. - Gary Goertz, University of Notre Dame, USA Causal mechanisms meet social policy research in this masterful volume that offers clear theoretical and methodological guidance, while providing concrete examples from across the world. Kuhlmann, Nullmeier, and the impressive group of scholars they have gathered offer an innovative mechanism-based approach to study social policy processes that elegantly fuses the actions of policy actors with complex theory-centered causal sequences. This book's theoretical and methodological insights make it a must-read for social policy scholars across disciplines. - Sara Niedzwiecki, University of California, Santa Cruz, USA This open access edited volume introduces the concept of causal mechanisms to explore new ways of explaining the global dynamics of social policy, and shows that a mechanism-based approach provides several advantages over established approaches for studying social policy. The introductory chapter outlines the mechanism-based approach, which stands out by modularisation and a clear focus on actors. The mechanism-based approach then guides the twelve chapters on social policy developments in different Asian, African, European and Latin American countries. Based on these findings, the concluding chapter provides a structured compilation of causal mechanisms and outlines how a mechanism-based approach can further strengthen research on the global development of social policies, especially in a comparative perspective. The edited volume is highly relevant for social policy scholars from a variety of disciplines, as well as for scholars interested in strengthening explanation in the social sciences. Johanna Kuhlmann is Postdoctoral Researcher at the SOCIUM Research Center on Inequality and Social Policy, University of Bremen, Germany. Frank Nullmeier is Professor of Political Science at the SOCIUM Research Center on Inequality and Social, University of Bremen, Germany.
