

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910580273403321
Autore	Passmore David G (David Glynn)
Titolo	Archaeology and environment in Northumberland / / by David G. Passmore and Clive Waddington ; with contributions by Tim Gates and Peter Marshall
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Oxford, : Oxbow Books Oakville, Conn., : [Distributed by] David Brown Book Co., c2012
ISBN	9781789256543 1789256542 9781842179321 1842179322
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (409 p.)
Collana	Till-Tweed studies ; ; v. 2
Altri autori (Persone)	WaddingtonClive GatesTim MarshallPeter
Disciplina	936.288
Soggetti	Landscape archaeology - England - Northumberland Landscape archaeology - Tweed River Region (Scotland and England) Landscape archaeology - Till River Region (England) Northumberland (England) Antiquities Tweed River (Scotland and England) Antiquities Till River (England) Antiquities Northumberland (England) Environmental conditions Tweed River (Scotland and England) Environmental conditions Till River (England) Environmental conditions
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	pt. 1. Setting the scene -- pt. 2. Chronological narrative.
Sommario/riassunto	Eventful, influential and absorbing, the early history of Northumberland is a fascinating story that has rarely been brought together under one cover. In this authoritative historical account, the authors bring to bear a huge quantity of old and new data and craft it into an in-depth synthesis. The authors deliver this history in chronological order from a perspective that places human activity and environment at its core. The narrative extends from the Palaeolithic through to, and including, the Anglo-Saxon period. This enormous sweep of history is supported by a robust radiocarbon chronology

---