

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910583592303321
Autore	Hill Lisa
Titolo	How and Why to Regulate False Political Advertising in Australia // by Lisa Hill, Max Douglass, Ravi Baltutis
Pubbl/distr/stampa	2022 Singapore : , : Springer Nature Singapore : , : Imprint : Palgrave Macmillan, , 2022
Edizione	[1st ed. 2022.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (174 pages)
Classificazione	LAW018000POL007000POL028000
Altri autori (Persone)	DouglassMax BaltutisRavi
Disciplina	328
Soggetti	Legislation Constitutional law Elections Legislative Politics Constitutional Law Electoral Politics
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di contenuto	Chapter 1. Introduction -- Chapter 2: The Measurable Effects of Disinformation on Elections -- Chapter 3: Disinformation as a Collective Action Problem -- Chapter 4: Experiments in Election Advertising Laws in Authentic Democracies Elsewhere -- Chapter 5: Australia's Experience -- Chapter 6: South Australia - A Model Legal Regime for Regulating Electoral Advertising -- Chapter 7: Issues in Administration of s 113 -- Chapter 8: 10 Main Recommendations.
Sommario/riassunto	This book represents the first comprehensive, Australia-focused treatment of the problem of false election information disseminated for the purpose of gaining an electoral advantage. It explores cautious legal regulation as the most effective and decisive approach to the issue. In doing so, the book demonstrates that, although experiments with such remedies have met with mixed success elsewhere, they are nevertheless viable, especially in Australia where they have strong public support and are able to withstand constitutional challenge. This is an open access book. Lisa Hill is a Professor of Politics at the University of Adelaide. Her research interests are in electoral studies, political theory and history of ideas. Max Douglass is a teaching and research assistant at the University of Adelaide, and a Juris Doctor candidate at the University of Melbourne Law School. Ravi Baltutis is a research assistant at the University of Adelaide, a former Student Editor of the Adelaide Law Review and currently employed at Dentons, a global law firm.
