

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910585999103321
Titolo	Violent Times Rising Resistance: An Interdisciplinary Gender Perspective
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Zurich, : Seismo, 2022
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (155 p.)
Collana	Gender Issues
Soggetti	Sociology
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di contenuto	Introduction: Rethinking dominant understandings of violence and resistance from intersectional and transdisciplinary perspectives / Dominique Grisard, Annelise Erismann and Janine Dahinden -- Blood of the dawn : resistance literature against forgetting / Virginia Leon Torrez -- Which women's murders are "grievable"? : on the media's frames and feminicides in Roberto Bolano's 2666 / Carmen Carrasco Lujden -- Sexual violence as an invisible process in white-collar work / Isabel Boni-Le Goff -- The normative framework of intimate partner violence : mechanisms of differentiation from others / Susanne Nef -- Tracing the violence of hegemonic silence : the (non-)representation of women's suffrage in theories on Swiss democracy since 1971 / Katrin Meyer -- Between violence and resistance : the Brazilian LGBT musical movement / Nicolas Wasser -- The sensuous politics of singing in a trans* chorus / Holly Patch -- "I would haunt you" : contemporary Cree literacy resistance to settler-colonial violence through radical incivility / Patrizia Zanella.
Sommario/riassunto	Violence is a persistent element of modern history and it always has been gendered. Today's violent times have politicized and mobilized new publics, generated creative forms of resistance, incited the most unlikely coalitions, and emboldened to live life differently. The systemic use of rape as a strategy in war fare, nationalism, and settler colonialism, the persistency of intimate partner violence, and the increasingly open racist, sexist, transphobic, and homophobic discrimination are just a few examples of violence's omnipresent gender dimension. The contributions of this volume analyse violence and multiple forms of resistance from an interdisciplinary gender perspective. They show that violence is not just a central and powerful structuring principle of gender, sexuality, ethnicity, race, and class, but that it is also part of the fabric of nation states and structures all social relations. In addition, the contributions depict manifold strategies and tactics of confronting gendered violence.

---