

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910587472003321
Titolo	Commemorating race and empire in the First World War centenary // edited by Ben Wellings and Shanti Sumartojo [[electronic resource]]
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Aix-en-Provence : , : Presses universitaires de Provence : [Liverpool] : Liverpool university press, , 2018
ISBN	1-78694-497-9 1-78694-848-6
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (193 pages) : digital, PDF file(s)
Collana	Societes contemporaines
Disciplina	940.31
Soggetti	World War, 1914-1918 - Social aspects World War, 1914-1918 - Centennial celebrations, etc Europe Colonies Race relations History 20th century
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Title from publisher's bibliographic system (viewed on 15 Jan 2020).
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Sommario/riassunto	First World War commemoration in Europe has been framed as a moment of national trial and as a collective European tragedy. But the 'Great War for Civilisation' was more than just a European conflict. It was in fact a global war, a clash of empires that began a process of nationalist agitation against imperial polities and the racisms that underpinned them in Asia, Africa and beyond. Despite the global context of Centenary commemorative activity these events remain framed by national and state imaginaries and ones in which the ideas about nation, race and imperialism that animated and dominated men and women during the Great War sit uncomfortably with modern sensibilities. By drawing on original archival research, translations from French and Mandarin into English and by employing multidisciplinary conceptual frames of analysis this exciting and innovative volume explores how race and empire, and racism and imperialism, were commemorated or forgotten during the First World War Centenary.