Sommario/riassunto	Careers Leaders will find this handbook absolutely essential. As part of the government's new careers strategy and associated statutory guidance, schools are required to appoint a Careers Leader from September 2018 to lead, manage and co-ordinate the school's career programme and build the networks that are required to support it. This practical book, written by experts David Andrews and Tristram Hooley, is designed to meet the needs of this new breed of Careers Leaders in schools. It will also be valuable for everyone else involved in delivering careers work in schools or providing support and training for Careers Leaders.
