

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910691694103321
Titolo	Advertisements promising debt relief may be offering bankruptcy [[electronic resource]]
Pubbl/distr/stampa	[Washington, D.C.] : , : Federal Trade Commission, Bureau of Consumer Protection, Office of Consumer and Business Education, , [2002]
Descrizione fisica	2 unnumbered pages : digital, PDF file
Collana	FTC consumer alert
Disciplina	336.36 011.53 640.73 659.1 346.078
Soggetti	Debt relief - United States Bankruptcy - United States Debt relief Government publications Consumer education Advertising Bankruptcy
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Title from title screen (viewed on Apr. 1, 2003).
Sommario/riassunto	The U.S. Federal Trade Commission (FTC) Bureau of Consumer Protection presents the March 2000 consumer alert "Advertisements Promising Debt Relief May Be Offering Bankruptcy" in PDF format. The alert warns consumers about advertisements that promise debt relief. These advertisements may actually be talking about bankruptcy, which remains on a person's credit report for ten years and can reduce the person's ability to get credit, a job, insurance, or housing.