Sommario/riassunto	This document describes how States spend the funds allocated to them by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration's (SAMHSA's) Block Grant Program for substance abuse prevention and treatment services and how States allocate their own funding for these services. Policy officials can use the information in this document to assist in the review of the effectiveness of the Substance Abuse Prevention and Treatment (SAPT) Block Grant. Reviewing expenditures data can contribute to the development of policy formulation for future expenditures.
