Sommario/riassunto	The 12th Amendment to the Constitution requires that candidates for President and Vice President receive a majority of electoral votes (currently 270 or more of a total of 538) to be elected. If no candidate receives a majority, the President is elected by the House of Representatives, and the Vice President is elected by the Senate. This process is referred to as contingent election and is the topic of discussion in this report.

Sommario/riassunto	The manual provides the student of Economics and Business Management with an overview of the fundamental contents of the problems related to the creation, governance and management of an enterprises, considered as a systemic union of three constitutive structures (the ownership structure, the entrepreneurial structure and the operational framework). The viewing point is the one of the entrepreneurial top. In particular, the government and management areas are the object of study, with regard to medium-sized industrial companies that deal with conditions of physiological normality (or of a non-pathological state). Particular insights are dedicated, in the third part of the work, to Management Buy Out processes and to smaller business realities, with particular reference to the typical characteristics of administration of the financial structure and of the SME report - High Technology.
