

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910717214203321
Autore	Flores Walter
Titolo	Curbing corruption after conflict : anticorruption mobilization in Guatemala / / by Walter Flores and Miranda Rivers
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Washington, DC : , : United States Institute of Peace, , 2020 ©2020
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (23 pages) : color illustrations
Collana	Special report / United States Institute of Peace ; ; no. 482
Soggetti	Political corruption - Guatemala - Prevention Corruption - Guatemala - Prevention Politics and government Corruption - Prevention Political corruption - Prevention Guatemala Politics and government 21st century Guatemala
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	"September 2020."
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (pages 20-22).
Nota di contenuto	Introduction. -- Historical Background. -- 2015: A Civic Reawakening to Curb Corruption. -- Setbacks and Backlash since 2015. -- The Anticorruption Movement Today. -- Recommendations for External Actors.
Sommario/riassunto	Guatemala has a long history of violent conflict, and corruption has been a key driver of that violence, with organized crime and clandestine security groups being closely tied to politicians and government institutions. The movement to advance transparency, accountability, and democratic governance in Guatemala peaked in 2015, when the country's president and vice president were forced to step down, but many civil society groups continue to promote an anticorruption agenda. Since then, the movement has been met with backlash from politicians and members of Guatemala's economic elite, and efforts to root out corruption have been hindered by increasing ideological polarization within both the movement and Guatemalan society as a whole.

