

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910728600803321
Autore	Savarese Ralph James
Titolo	See it feelingly : classic novels, autistic readers, and the schooling of a no-good English professor // Ralph James Savarese
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Durham : , : Duke University Press, , 2018
ISBN	9781478002734 1478002735 9781478001300 1478001305
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (297 pages)
Collana	Thought in the act
Disciplina	616.85882
Soggetti	Autistic people - Psychology Autistic people - Language Autistic people - Education English fiction - Study and teaching
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Prologue: river of words, raft of our conjoined neurologies -- From a world as fluid as the sea -- The heavens of the brain -- Andys and auties -- Finding her feet -- Take for Grandin.
Sommario/riassunto	"Since the 1940s researchers have been repeating claims about autistic people's limited ability to understand language, to partake in imaginative play, and to generate the complex theory of mind necessary to appreciate literature. In See It Feelingly Ralph James Savarese, an English professor whose son is one of the first nonspeaking autistics to graduate from college, challenges this view. Discussing fictional works over a period of years with readers from across the autism spectrum, Savarese was stunned by the readers' ability to expand his understanding of texts he knew intimately. Their startling insights emerged not only from the way their different bodies and brains lined up with a story but also from their experiences of stigma and exclusion. For Mukhopadhyay Moby-Dick is an allegory of revenge against autism, the frantic quest for a cure. The white whale represents the autist's baffling, because wordless, immersion in the sensory. Computer programmer and cyberpunk author Dora Raymaker skewers the empathetic failings of the bounty hunters in Philip K. Dick's Do Androids Dream of Electric Sheep? Autistics, some studies suggest, offer instruction in embracing the nonhuman. Encountering a short story about a lonely marine biologist in Antarctica, Temple Grandin remembers her past with an uncharacteristic emotional intensity, and she reminds the reader of the myriad ways in which people can relate to fiction. Why must there be a norm? Mixing memoir with current research in autism and cognitive literary studies, Savarese celebrates how literature springs to life through the contrasting responses of unique individuals, while helping people both on and off the spectrum to engage more richly with the world." -- Publisher's description.
