

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910737282503321
Titolo	Europe and the refugee response : a crisis of values? // edited by Elzbieta M. Gozdziaak, Izabella Main and Brigitte Suter
Pubbl/distr/stampa	New York : , : Routledge, , 2020
ISBN	9780429279317 0429279310
Edizione	[1 ed.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource
Collana	Routledge studies in development, displacement and resettlement
Disciplina	305.9/06914094
Soggetti	Immigrants - Europe - Social conditions Minorities - Europe - Social conditions Europeans - Cultural assimilation - Foreign countries Immigrants - Cultural assimilation SOCIAL SCIENCE / Emigration & Immigration Europe Emigration and immigration Government policy Europe Ethnic relations
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di contenuto	European norms and values and the refugee crisis -- Echoes of memories of forced displacement -- Against the expansion of racism -- The Moral Panic Button 1 -- Abolishing asylum and violating the human rights of refugees. Why is it tolerated? -- Between closing borders to refugees and welcoming Ukrainian workers -- Debating deportation detention in Germany -- Integration by contract and the 'values of the Republic' -- Box-ticking exercise or real inclusion? -- Being a 'refuge-city' -- Holding course -- Community-based sponsorship of refugees resettling in the UK -- Crisis and Willkommenskultur -- Cosmopolitanism at the crossroads -- (Un) Deserving refugees -- Christian charity as the last line of defense for migrants in Ventimiglia -- Proclaiming and practicing pro-immigration values in Poland -- Concluding thoughts
Sommario/riassunto	"This book explores how the rising numbers of refugees entering Europe from 2015 onwards played into fears of cultural, religious, and ethnic differences across the continent. The migrant, or refugee crisis, prompted fierce debate about European norms and values, with some commentators questioning whether mostly Muslim refugees would be able to adhere to these values, and be able to integrate into a predominantly Christian European society. In this volume, philosophers, legal scholars, anthropologists and sociologists, analyze some of these debates and discuss practical strategies to reconcile the values that underpin the European project with multiculturalism and religious pluralism, whilst at the same time safeguarding the rights of refugees to seek asylum. Country case studies in the book are drawn from France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Netherlands, Poland, Spain, Sweden, and the United Kingdom; representing states with long histories of immigration, countries with a more recent refugee arrivals, and countries that want to keep refugees at bay and refuse to admit even the smallest number of asylum seekers. Contributors in the book explore the roles which national and local governments, civil society, and community leaders play in these debates and practices, and ask what strategies are being used to educate refugees about European values, and to facilitate their integration. At a time when debates on refugees and European norms continue to rage, this book provides an important interdisciplinary analysis which will be of interest to European policy makers, and researchers across the fields of migration, law, philosophy, anthropology, sociology, and political science"--
