

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910743286603321
Titolo	Analogies végétales dans la connaissance de la vie de l'Antiquité à l'Âge classique
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Besançon, : Presses universitaires de Franche-Comté, 2023
ISBN	2-84867-975-1
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (276 p.)
Collana	Sciences : concepts et problèmes
Altri autori (Persone)	CarvalhoSarah MaceArnaud
Soggetti	History of medicine History of science
Lingua di pubblicazione	Francese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Sommario/riassunto	Why and how do doctors use plants to understand and cure the human body? From the plant to the cosmos via the human body, doctors and philosophers conceive in an analogical way human and vegetative seeds, generation, nutrition, circulation, growth and thus bring together things and beings that today may seem us more foreign to each other. The investigation conducted through European medical, botanical, agricultural or philosophical texts from Antiquity to early modernity identifies the uses of plant analogies to say, think, see and care for the human body. The vegetal prism thus makes visible the intuition of a community of elementary processes between different types of living things.