Sommario/riassunto	The volume collects the proceedings of the conference "Florence and the Italian language between nation and Europe" which was held on 27-28 May 2004 at the Aula Magna of the University of Florence and the Accademia della Crusca. Florence has had, as is well known, a central role in the process of national linguistic unification and thanks to its international vocation has promoted the spread and knowledge of the Italian language and culture in Europe and in the world. Beyond any celebratory point of view, therefore, the conference allowed an open discussion on the cultural identity of the city in the contemporary context, through a critical reflection on its history (in particular on some significant moments of Florentine culture between the nineteenth and twentieth centuries) and on its linguistic primacy.
