

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910777607103321
Autore	Farber Samuel
Titolo	The Origins of the Cuban Revolution Reconsidered [[electronic resource]]
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Chapel Hill, : University of North Carolina Press, 2006
ISBN	979-88-908782-5-0 0-8078-7709-3
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (228 p.)
Collana	Envisioning Cuba
Disciplina	972.91064
Soggetti	History Latin America Regions & Countries - Americas History & Archaeology Cuba Politics and government 1959-1990 Cuba History Revolution, 1959 Causes United States Foreign relations 20th century United States Relations Cuba Cuba Relations United States
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di contenuto	CONTENTS; ACKNOWLEDGMENTS; CHRONOLOGY: MAJOR EVENTS IN CUBAN HISTORY, 1868–1961; INTRODUCTION; ONE: The Prerevolutionary Economy: Progress or Stagnation?; TWO: Fidel Castro and the Cuban Populist Tradition; THREE: U.S. Policy and the Cuban Revolution; FOUR: The Driving Force of the Cuban Revolution: From Above or From Below?; FIVE: The Role of the Soviet Union and the Cuban Communists; EPILOGUE; NOTES; SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY; INDEX;
Sommario/riassunto	Analyzing the crucial period of the Cuban Revolution from 1959 to 1961, this book challenges scholarly views of the revolution's sources, shape, and historical trajectory. It states that revolutionary leaders, while acting under serious constraints, were nevertheless autonomous agents pursuing their own independent ideological visions.

