

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910778046903321
Autore	Chaput Catherine
Titolo	Inside the teaching machine [[electronic resource]] : rhetoric and the globalization of the U.S. public research university / / Catherine Chaput
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Tuscaloosa, Ala., : University of Alabama Press, c2008
ISBN	0-8173-8010-8
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (341 p.)
Collana	Rhetoric, culture, and social critique
Disciplina	378/050973
Soggetti	Education, Higher - Research - United States Education, Higher - Political aspects - United States Education, Higher - Economic aspects - United States Globalization
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. [293]-318) and index.
Nota di contenuto	Contents; Preface; Acknowledgments; Introduction: Historical Materialist Rhetoric and the Hermeneutics of Valuation; PART I; 1. Historicizing the U.S. Public Research University: Industrial Capitalism and the Professional Ideal; 2. Monopoly Capitalism, Globalization, and University Transformation: A Plea against Nostalgia; PART II; 3. The Collusion of Economic and Cultural Systems: Globalization and the University; 4. The Rhetoric of University Missions: Globalizing Economic Consent, Commodifying Multiculturalism, and Privatizing the Social Good; PART III; 5. Working-Class Professionalism: Toward an Historical Materialist Pedagogy Notes; Works Cited; Index
Sommario/riassunto	Advocates of higher education have long contended that universities should operate above the crude material negotiations of economics and politics. Such arguments ignore the historical reality that the American university system emerged through, and in service to, a capitalist political economy that unevenly combines corporate, state, and civil interests. As the corporatization of U.S. universities becomes nearly impossible to deny, the common response from many academics has been a superior stand against the contamination of the professional ideal by tainted cor

