

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910780612703321
Autore	Biller Peter
Titolo	The measure of multitude [[electronic resource]] : population in medieval thought / / Peter Biller
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Oxford ; ; New York, : Oxford University Press, 2000
ISBN	1-280-44523-8 9786610445233 0-19-154249-0
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (600p., [8]p. of plates) : ill
Disciplina	304.6/0902
Soggetti	Population - History Demography - History
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Bibliographic Level Mode of Issuance: Monograph
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. [421]-452) and indexes.
Nota di contenuto	1. Introduction to medieval demographic thought; PART 1: THE CHURCH AND GENERATION; 2. Marriage and the Church's texts; 3. William of Auvergne; 4. An equal or unequal number of men and women; 5. The precept of marriage and sufficient multiplication; 6. Avoidance of offspring (i): the general picture; 7. Avoidance of offspring (ii): Canon law and Sentences commentaries; 8. Avoidance of offspring (iii): the pastoral picture; PART 2: THE MAP OF THE WORLD; 9. Inhabitation of the world; PART 3: ARISTOTLE AND MULTITUDE; 10. Animals and the life-span; 11. The Politics (i): reception; 12. The Politics (ii): age at marriage; 13. The Politics (iii): multitude; THE LIGHT OF THE COMMON DAY; 14. The Bulging circuit of Florence; Epigraph: The Climate of Thought; Bibliography; Index of Manuscripts; General Index
Sommario/riassunto	Challenging the view that medieval thought was abstract, this text shows that by 1300, society was beginning to measure multitude, counting, for example, numbers of boys and girls being baptised.