

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910780795803321
Autore	Foster Frances Smith
Titolo	'Til death or distance do us part [[electronic resource]] : love and marriage in African America // Frances Smith Foster
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Oxford ; ; New York, : Oxford University Press, 2010
ISBN	0-19-988697-0 1-282-38389-2 9786612383892 0-19-971651-X
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (xviii, 198 p.)
Disciplina	305.896073
Soggetti	African Americans - Marriage - History African Americans - Marriage customs and rites - History Enslaved persons - Family relationships - United States - History Marriage customs and rites - United States Marriage - Moral and ethical aspects - United States United States Social conditions To 1865
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Formerly CIP.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references.
Nota di contenuto	Adam and Eve, Antoney and Isabella -- Terms of endearment -- Practical thoughts, divine mandates, and the Afro-Protestant Press -- Rights and rituals -- Myths, memory, and self-realization -- Getting stories straight, keeping them real -- Alchemy of personal politics -- Me, Mende, and Sankofa : an epilogue.
Sommario/riassunto	Most people believe that marriages were forbidden and families destroyed during the era of slavery in the United States; however, this book demonstrates that antebellum publications by African Americans for African Americans about themselves do not support these conclusions.