

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910781349703321
Autore	Hassett-Walker Connie R. <1969->
Titolo	Black middle class delinquents [[electronic resource] /] / Connie R. Hassett-Walker
Pubbl/distr/stampa	El Paso, : LFB Scholarly Pub., 2009
ISBN	1-59332-542-8
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (245 p.)
Collana	Criminal justice
Disciplina	364.36086/220973
Soggetti	African American juvenile delinquents Middle class - United States
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Introduction -- Theoretical framework -- The Black middle class and crime -- Empirical research on class and crime -- Data and methodology -- Cross-sectional bivariate results -- Cross-sectional multivariate results for Blacks -- Cross-sectional comparative multivariate results -- Longitudinal data and analyses -- In conclusion: a call to fellow criminologists.
Sommario/riassunto	Most criminal justice research on African Americans focuses on poor Blacks living in poor Black communities. Hassett-Walker expands this focus to middle class Blacks and empirically tests an assertion from Pattillo-McCoy (1999)'s Black Picket Fences--that little difference in delinquency exists between poor versus middle class Black youth. Variables included class status, parent-child interaction, and neighborhood poverty. Parenting behavior and marital disruption were both predictive of delinquency. Having delinquent peers predicted future arrest, suggesting support for differential associati