

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910781363303321
Autore	Resko Stella M. <1978->
Titolo	Intimate partner violence and women's economic insecurity [[electronic resource] /] / Stella M. Resko
Pubbl/distr/stampa	El Paso [Tex.], : LFB Scholarly Pub., 2010
ISBN	1-59332-551-7
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (250 p.)
Collana	Criminal justice: recent scholarship
Disciplina	362.82/920973
Soggetti	Intimate partner violence Women - Violence against Abused women - Economic conditions
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. 203-237) and index.
Nota di contenuto	Universal risk ideology and intimate partner violence -- Women's economic well-being and intimate partner violence -- Theoretical perspectives on intimate partner violence -- Survey research on intimate partner violence -- "Fragile families" and intimate partner violence -- Male-to-female physical violence within urban families -- Male-to-female coercive control within urban families -- Conclusions and recommendations.
Sommario/riassunto	Resko examines the relationship between women's economic wellbeing and intimate partner violence. Using data from the Fragile Families Survey, she examines hypotheses shaped by stress theory and social exchange theory and investigates racial and ethnic differences in these models. Her results support the notion that improving women's economic position can reduce intimate partner violence. Little evidence supported the backlash hypothesis, but in some situations men's poor performance in the labor force may be associated with an increased abuse. The strength of these results, however, differs a