

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910781451403321
Autore	Margolis Rachel
Titolo	A Partisan from Vilna // Rachel Margolis
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Boston, MA : , : Academic Studies Press, , [2010] ©2010
ISBN	1-61811-121-3
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (520 p.)
Collana	Jews of Poland
Altri autori (Persone)	Jackson PiotrowF PolonskyAntony
Disciplina	940.54864793
Soggetti	Fareyniḳṭe parṭizaner organizatsye (Vilnius, Lithuania) -- Biography Margolis, Raḥel Women guerrillas -- Belarus -- Biography Women guerrillas -- Lithuania -- Biography World War, 1939-1945 -- Personal narratives, Jewish World War, 1939-1945 -- Personal narratives, Lithuanian World War, 1939-1945 -- Underground movements -- Belarus World War, 1939-1945 -- Underground movements -- Lithuania Women guerrillas - Underground movements - Lithuania Women guerrillas - Underground movements - Belarus World War, 1939-1945 - Lithuania World War, 1939-1945 - Belarus World War, 1939-1945 - Vilnius - Lithuania World War, 1939-1945 Jewish women History & Archaeology History - General Biographies.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di contenuto	Frontmatter -- TABLE OF CONTENTS -- ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS / Margolis, Marjorie -- INTRODUCTION / Polonsky, Antony -- LALECZKA

(YEARS 1927-1931) -- THE GATEWAY TO HELL -- GHETTO --
PARTISANS -- AFTERWORD / Margolis, Marjorie -- ILLUSTRATIONS --
INDEX OF NAMES -- GEOGRAPHICAL INDEX

Sommario/riassunto

A Partisan of Vilna is the memoir of Rachel Margolis, the sole survivor of her family, who escaped from the Vilna Ghetto with other members of the FPO (United Partisan Organization) resistance movement and joined the Soviet partisans in the forests of Lithuania to sabotage the Nazis. Beginning with an account of Rachel's life as a precocious, privileged girl in pre-war Vilna, it goes on to detail life in the Vilna Ghetto, including the development of the FPO and its struggles against the Nazis. Finally, the book chronicles the escape of a group of FPO members into the forest of Belarus, where Rachel became a partisan fighter. Rather than "keep house" back at their bunker like other female partisans, Rachel demanded assignments to active duty alongside the men. Going on military assignments, she burned down a bridge, blew up railroad tracks, and helped bring in food supplies for her fellow partisans. The book opens with an introductory essay by renowned historian Antony Polonsky.
