

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910781695603321
Autore	Martin Pamela <1971->
Titolo	Oil in the soil [[electronic resource]] : the politics of paying to preserve the Amazon / / Pamela L. Martin
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Lanham, MD., : Rowman & Littlefield Publishers, Inc., c2011
ISBN	9781442211308 144221130X
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (163 p.)
Disciplina	333.78/309866416
Soggetti	Environmental policy - Ecuador - Parque Nacional Yasuni Environmental protection - Ecuador - Parque Nacional Yasuni Environmental degradation - Ecuador - Parque Nacional Yasuni Petroleum industry and trade - Environmental aspects - Ecuador - Parque Nacional Yasuni Parque Nacional Yasuni (Ecuador) Environmental conditions
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Contents; Acknowledgments; Acronyms; Chapter 1. Saving Yasuni and the Planet: Toward a Global Politics of the Good Life; Chapter 2. Global Politics from the Canopy; Chapter 3. History in Black, Green, and Red; Chapter 4. Pay to Preserve: The Yasuni-ITT Trust Fund; Chapter 5. Behind the Scenes: Agents, Norms, and Structure in the Quest to Save Yasuni; Chapter 6. The Future of Global Governance in the Amazon: The Yasuni Effect; Bibliography; Index; About the Author
Sommario/riassunto	Oil in the Soil analyzes the campaign to save the ITT block of Yasuni National Park in Ecuador's Western Amazon-one of the most biodiverse places on the planet. Pamela L. Martin examines the path-breaking global environmental governance mechanisms that have resulted from the Yasuni-ITT Initiative and its implications for replication around the world.