

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910782143103321
Autore	King Adam <1965->
Titolo	Etowah [[electronic resource]] : the political history of a chiefdom capital // Adam King
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Tuscaloosa, : University of Alabama Press, c2003
ISBN	0-8173-8200-3
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (191 p.)
Disciplina	975.8/35
Soggetti	Mississippian culture - Georgia - Etowah River Valley Chiefdoms - Georgia - Etowah River Valley Mississippian pottery - Georgia - Etowah River Valley Social archaeology - Georgia - Etowah River Valley Etowah Indian Mound State Historic Site (Ga.) Etowah River Valley (Ga.) Antiquities
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	"A Dan Josselyn memorial publication."
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. [155]-174) and index.
Nota di contenuto	Contents; Index; Illustrations; Tables; Acknowledgments; 1. Mississippian Chiefdoms and Political Change; 2. The Etowah River Valley and Its Mississippian Archaeology; 3. A Political History of Etowah; 4. The Rise and Fall of Etowah Valley Chiefdoms; 5. Understanding Etowah Valley Political Change; 6. Summary and Future Directions; Appendix: Radiocarbon Dating the Occupations at Etowah; References Cited
Sommario/riassunto	A Dan Josselyn Memorial Publication This is a detailed reconstruction of the waxing and waning of political fortunes among the chiefly elites at an important center of the prehistoric world. At the time the first Europeans arrived in the New World, thousands of earthen platform mounds dotted the landscape of eastern North America. Only a few of the mound sites have survived the ravages of time and the devastation of pilferers; one of these valuable monuments is Etowah, located near Cartersville in northern Georgia. Over a period of more than