

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910783728203321
Autore	Buckley John (John D.)
Titolo	Air power in the age of total war / / John Buckley
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Bloomington, Ind. : , : Indiana University Press, , 1999
ISBN	1-135-36275-0 1-135-36276-9 1-280-42871-6 9786610428717 0-203-00722-0
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (273 p.)
Collana	Warfare and History
Disciplina	358.4 358.400904
Soggetti	Aeronautics, Military Air power History Air Forces Military & Naval Science Law, Politics & Government
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (pages 246-250) and index.
Nota di contenuto	Preliminaries; Contents; List of tables; Acknowledgements; Glossary; 1 Air power in the age of total war; 2 The birth of air power; 3 The First World War 1914 18; 4 The development of air power doctrine and theory 1918 39; 5 Global air power 1918 39; 6 The war in Europe 1939 45; 7 The war in the Far East 1937 45; 8 Air power and the post war world; 9 Conclusions; Notes; Select bibliography; Index
Sommario/riassunto	Warfare in the first half of the 20th century was fundamentally and irrevocably altered by the birth and subsequent development of air power. This work assesses the role of air power in changing the face of battle on land and sea. Utilizing late-1990s research, the author demonstrates that the phenomenon of air power was both a cause and a crucial accelerating factor contributing to the theory and practice of total war. For instance, the expansion of warfare to the homefront was a direct result of bombing and indirectly due to the extent of national economic mobilization required to support fi

2. Record Nr.	UNINA9910640377603321
Autore	Boyle Mark
Titolo	COVID-19 and the Case Against Neoliberalism : The United Kingdom's Political Pandemic / / by Mark Boyle, James Hickson, Katalin Ujhelyi Gomez
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Cham : , : Springer International Publishing : , : Imprint : Palgrave Macmillan, , 2022
ISBN	9783031189357 3031189353
Edizione	[1st ed. 2022.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (248 pages)
Disciplina	320.510941 362.1962414400941
Soggetti	Human geography Political science Science - Social aspects Epidemiology Political science - Philosophy Human Geography Political Theory Science and Technology Studies Political Philosophy
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di contenuto	Chapter 1: In what sense a political pandemic? -- Chapter 2: A brief introduction to the odyssey of (British) neoliberalism -- Chapter 3: Chastened: The UKs encounter with COVID-19 in global context -- Chapter 4: Neoliberalism, freedom and the UKs response to COVID-19 -- Chapter 5: The reluctant neoliberal state: Reticent and hesitant? -- Chapter 6: Me, Myself and I? The neoliberal citizen -- Chapter 7: An unequal pandemic: neoliberalism and variegated vulnerability --

Sommario/riassunto

This book seeks to better understand the meaning and implications of the UK's calamitous encounter with the COVID-19 global pandemic for the future of British neoliberalism. Construing COVID-19 as a political pandemic and mobilising a novel applied political philosophy approach, the authors cultivate fresh intellectual resources, both analytical and normative, to better understand why the UK failed the COVID-19 test and how it might 'fail forward' so as to strengthen its resilience. COVID-19 they argue, has intercepted the UK government's decades-long experimentation with neoliberalism at what appears to be a threshold moment in this model's life course. Neoliberalism has served as a key progenitor of the country's vulnerability: the pandemic has cruelly unveiled the failings of neoliberal logics and legacies which have placed the country at elevated risk and hampered its response. The pandemic in turn has attenuated underlying systemic maladies inherent in British neoliberalism and served as a great disruptor and potential accelerant of history; a consequential episode in the tumultuous life of this politico-economic model. To meaningfully 'build back better', a true renaissance of social democracy is needed. Drawing upon the neorepublican tradition of political philosophy, the authors confront neoliberalism's hegemonic but parochial concept of human freedom as non-interference and place the neorepublican idea of freedom as non-domination in the service of building a new UK social contract. This book will be of interest to political philosophers, political geographers, medical sociologists, public-health scholars, and epidemiologists, to stakeholders engaged in the public inquiry processes now gathering momentum globally and to architects of build back better programmes, especially in western advanced capitalist economies. Mark Boyle is Professor of Geography in the Department of Geography at Maynooth University in Ireland. James Hickson is Research Associate at the University of Liverpool's Heseltine Institute for Public Policy, Practice and Place. Katalin Ujhelyi Gomez is Research Associate at the Applied Research Collaboration North West Coast (ARC NWC) in the Department of Primary Care and Mental Health at the University of Liverpool.