

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910783757503321
Autore	Seidle Leslie
Titolo	Reforming parliamentary democracy // edited by F. Leslie Seidle and David C. Docherty
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Montreal ; ; Ithaca : , : McGill-Queen's University Press, , 2003 ©2003
ISBN	1-282-86094-1 9786612860942 0-7735-7082-9
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (viii, 245 pages)
Altri autori (Persone)	SeidleF. Leslie DochertyDavid Campbell <1961->
Disciplina	328.3/04
Soggetti	Legislative bodies - Reform Representative government and representation Legislative bodies - Canada - Reform Comparative government
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Institutional change in a small democracy : New Zealand's experience of electoral reform / Jonathan Boston -- Australian republic : act I / Cheryl Saunders -- Solving the conundrum of second chamber reform in the United Kingdom / Lord Wakeham -- Canada and the Aboriginal peoples : from dominion to condominium / Paul L.A.H. Chartrand -- Maori in governance : Parliament, statutory recognition, and the state sector / Mason Durie -- Debating the reform of Canada's Parliament / Jennifer Smith. Interdependence of governments in Canada / Stephane Dion / UK's rolling program of devolution : slippery slope or safeguard of the union? / Robert Hazell -- Designing Parliament for cooperative federalism : South Africa's National Council of Provinces / Christina Murray -- ; Conclusion, Can Canada learn some lessons? / David C. Docherty.
Sommario/riassunto	The authors address issues of representation - the move to a proportional electoral system in New Zealand, the unsuccessful attempt to establish a domestic head of state in Australia, and the reform of the British House of Lords - and demonstrate that citizens increasingly want legislative institutions to more closely reflect the societies they serve. To discuss responsiveness, the governance of indigenous communities and their place within the broader society in Canada and New Zealand are examined, as is the role of institutions other than legislatures that are involved in protecting minority rights and responding to various forms of diversity. A separate chapter analyses the basis for and merits of proposals to reform the Canadian House of Commons. In addition, authors review the dynamics of federalism, intergovernmental relations, and other processes of multi-level governance in Canada, the United Kingdom, and South Africa. Public debate about adapting governance processes to changing conditions and citizen values is a necessary condition of successful democracies and there is much to learn from progress and false starts in other parliamentary democracies. Contributors include Jonathan Boston (Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand), Paul Chartrand (consultant, Victoria, British Columbia), Stéphane Dion (minister of Intergovernmental Relations, Government of Canada), David Docherty, Mason Durie (Massey University), Robert Hazell (University College London), Christina Murray (University of Cape Town), Cheryl Saunders (University of Melbourne), Leslie Seidle, Jennifer Smith (Dalhousie University), and Lord Wakeham (former chairman of the Royal Commission on House of Lords Reform).
