Record Nr. UNINA9910783767503321 Autore Tunnell Kenneth D Titolo Pissing on demand [[electronic resource]]: workplace drug testing and the rise of the detox industry / / Kenneth D. Tunnell New York,: New York University Press, c2004 Pubbl/distr/stampa ISBN 0-8147-8438-0 0-8147-8344-9 1-4294-1487-1 Descrizione fisica 1 online resource (187 p.) Collana Alternative criminology series Disciplina 331.25/98 Employees - Drug testing - United States Soggetti Detoxification (Substance abuse treatment) - United States Lingua di pubblicazione Inglese Formato Materiale a stampa Livello bibliografico Monografia Note generali Description based upon print version of record. Nota di bibliografia Includes bibliographical references (p. 165-172) and index. Nota di contenuto The emergence of drug testing -- The drug testing industry -- The detox industry -- Drug testing as social monitoring and control -- The politics of resistance. Drug testing has become the norm in many workplaces. In order to get Sommario/riassunto a job, potential employees are required to provide their urine for testing. Pissing on Demand examines this phenomenon along with the resulting rise of the anti-drug testing movement, or the ""detox industry,"" that works to beat these tests. Strategies include over-thecounter products like ""body flushers"" that sound innocent but are really designed to mask the presence of illegal drugs to kits advertised in pro-drug publications like High Times that make no bones about their real purpose. The first expose of the detox ind