

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910784003303321
Autore	Burrows Andrew
Titolo	Understanding the law of obligations : essays on contract, tort and restitution // Andrew Burrows
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Oxford, : Hart Publishing, 1998
ISBN	1-84731-675-1 1-4725-5900-2 1-280-80871-3 9786610808717 1-84731-142-3
Edizione	[First edition.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (248 pages)
Disciplina	346.4102
Soggetti	Contracts - Great Britain Obligations (Law) - Great Britain Torts - Great Britain Restitution - Great Britain
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index
Nota di contenuto	Preliminaries; Contents; Foreword; Table of Cases; Table of Statutes and Supra national Legislation; 1 Dividing the Law of Obligations; 2 Solving the Problem of Concurrent Liability; 3 Understanding the Law of Restitution: A Map Through the Thicket; 4 Free Acceptance and the Law of Restitution; 5 Restitution Where do We Go From Here; 6 In Defence of Tort; 7 Legislative Reform of Remedies for Breach of Contract; 8 Improving Contract and Tort: the View from the Law Commission; Index;
Sommario/riassunto	"Through these studies of contract, tort and restitution, Andrew Burrows provides a stimulating guide to the present shape and likely future development of the law of obligations. Having argued that one should distinguish contract, tort and restitution, while recognising concurrent liability between them, Burrows goes on to map out the law of restitution and to analyse the future direction of that newly-recognised subject. Tort is then defended against those who would seek to abolish much of it. Looking through the eyes of the Law

Commissioner charged with responsibility for recommending improvements to the law of obligations, the collection of essays is rounded off with a view of the main reforms needed in this central area of civil justice."--Bloomsbury Publishing

Through these studies of contract, tort and restitution, Andrew Burrows provides a stimulating guide to the present shape and likely future development of the law of obligations. Having argued that one should distinguish contract, tort and restitution, while recognising concurrent liability between them, Burrows goes on to map out the law of restitution and to analyse the future direction of that newly-recognised subject. Tort is then defended against those who would seek to abolish much of it. Looking through the eyes of the Law Commissioner charged with responsibility for recommending improvements to the law of obligations, the collection of essays is rounded off with a view of the main reforms needed in this central area of civil justice
