

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910784206303321
Autore	Peck Robert S
Titolo	Libraries, the First Amendment, and cyberspace [[electronic resource] ] : what you need to know // Robert S. Peck
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Chicago, : American Library Association, 2000
ISBN	0-8389-9969-7
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (228 p.)
Collana	ALA editions
Disciplina	025.04
Soggetti	Internet access for library users - Law and legislation - United States Libraries - Censorship - Law and legislation - United States Freedom of speech - United States
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	CONTENTS; INTRODUCTION; CHAPTER 1; CHAPTER 2; CHAPTER 3; CHAPTER 4; CHAPTER 5; CHAPTER 6; CHAPTER 7; CHAPTER 8; CHAPTER 9; APPENDIX A; APPENDIX B; APPENDIX C; APPENDIX D; A P P E N D I X E; A P P E N D I X F; APPENDIX G; GLOSSARY; I N D E X;
Sommario/riassunto	The First Amendment is inextricably tied up with all kinds of library service, from providing meeting rooms for patrons, to lending materials to children, to giving patrons access to the Internet. Written by the director of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, Libraries, the First Amendment, and Cyberspace examines how and in what areas the First Amendment affects library decision making and service delivery. With attention to today's electronic environment, Peck's timely and comprehensive book answers the questions librarians most often have about censorship, access, the role of the l