Sommario/riassunto	This e-book includes articles that focus on higher educational issues and concerns at business schools worldwide. The collection of articles includes a discussion of the possible impact of measurements and rankings within research and education; an examination of the importance and impact of leadership education which is contextually relevant, an investigation of how business schools can organize their research, and meet the demands from the business community; and also a piece which examines the translation, censorship, and publication of Philip Kotler's Marketing Management in the Soviet Uni
